impuls, the international Ensemble- and Composers-Academy and Association for the Communication of Contemporary Music under the artistic direction of Beat Furrer and Ernst Kovacic, has developed into one of the leading institutions of contemporary music within shortly. Instrumental classes as well as ensemble work, composition classes and special programs such as Ensemble meets Composer offered young musicians and composers from all over the world an important platform for mutual exchange and collective work as well as diversified approaches to the music of the 20th and 21st century already during the last years.

In 2009 the impuls-programs could be enlarged essentially:

Reading-sessions with Klangforum Wien and Enno Poppe and additional Academy-programs such as the open Composers' Pool, a special electronic-program, that made use of the newly developed technology MELE and strengthened the cooperation of instrumentalists and composers, the opening of the Academy also to guest students and external visitors, an enlarged team of international lecturers, ... and, last but not least, a daily festival-program (open also to the public) stressing different aspects of music, the communication of music and music-business, new technologies, music-production and interpretation ... attracted more participants and visitors than ever before. Through various concerts with Klangforum Wien, the impuls-lecturers as well as the participants and guests, workshop-presentations, gallery-concerts, discussions and round-tables, impuls-lectures, artists-talks ... and even workshop for kids impuls could also achieve a wide public and medial resonance. In addition to that a newly developed network with other cultural institutions and activities at different locations in Graz – apart from the University of Music (KUG) as center of the academic training – contributed to the broad success of impuls in Feburary 2009.

Besides the Academy- and Festival-Activities in Graz (February 13th to 25th) impuls organised the impuls Composition Workshop with Klangforum Wien and Enno Poppe for four preselected international young composers in Vienna (February 9th to 12th), which led to the première of new works commissioned by impuls at Helmut-List-Halle in Graz on February 14th.

In addition to that impuls organised the international impuls Composition Competition 2009/2011 (see below) .

For the upcoming months impuls is working on other activities, such as a new edition of the extremely successful Gallery-day with impuls-concerts throughout Graz, and the preparation of the impuls-Academy and -Festival 2011.
